'Blast from the Past'

Established in 1970

At the foot of the Black Mountains between Crickhowell and Brecon is the award winning Nantylfin Cider Mill Inn.

Literally translated as 'the Brook by the border' The Nantylfin was originally a drovers' inn dating back to the 16th century. Well known for its production of cider during the 19th century - The Nantylfin is now recognized as one of the great food destinations in Wales.

It has been renowned for over 10 years for its successful combination of the traditional values of great British pubs with the classic style of the bistros of rural France.

Though there is room to eat in the bar and lounge areas, the old apple store has been converted into The Mill Room Restaurant to accommodate the ever-growing number of diners.

Always popular with visitors to the Brecon Beacons National Park and local food lovers alike, the Nantylfin Cider Mill now has a pedigree that attracts diners from across the UK and beyond.
